10 scoring rules that will make every golfer smarter—remember them

~Golfdigest.com

1. The 20/20/20 Rule

What's the best way to work on your move? To actually make a swing change stick, especially when you don't have lots of time to spend?

For that, remember Golf Digest Top 50 coach Tony Ruggiero's 20/20/20 practice rule.

First hit 20 golf balls swinging in slow motion, making the move you want, sending the ball only a fraction of the distance.

Then hit 20 normal golf shots, but with five exaggerated swing rehearsals before each shot.

Finally, hit 20 golf shots with your full routine, forgetting the swing stuff.

You can change the exact number of balls, but the format should stay the same.

2. The 78-22 Rule

Dr. Bhrett McCabe is a top sports psychologist who works with lots of tour players, yet he sees them make the same mistake as the rest of us.

When golfers don't have their "A" game, they tend to focus on what's missing, which sends them into a downward spiral. So instead of focusing on the 22% of your game that isn't going right, take a glass half full approach. Appreciate the 78% of your game that is working for you that day, and have the awareness to play towards your strengths.

3. The 5(ish)% Rule

Golf is a game of misses, an old cliché that is annoyingly true.

How do you play your misses?

Easy: Matt Fitzpatrick assumes that a mis-hit shot travels 5 percent shorter than his standard distance. So, a 150 yard shot travels only 147 yards. For amateurs, assume a mishit shot travels closer to 10 percent shorter—so that 150 yard shot goes just shy of 140 yards. When there's trouble short, budget accordingly.

4. The 4.5% Rule

Not having fun on the golf course? Or just up for a fun experiment? Then try this:

- Look at your home course's yardage from a given tee box (example: Blue tees, 6,000 yards)
- Now, calculate 4.5 percent that yardage (4.5 percent of 6,000 yards is 270 yards)

Is your average driving distance shorter than that 4.5% number? If so, move up a tee box and try again.

This formula roughly equates to what a course feels like for Rory McIlroy, whose average driving distance is about four-and-a-half percent of the average PGA Tour's course length. You can learn more here, but long story short, the chances are you're playing tees that are way too far back. Tee it forward—it'll be more fun.

5. The 80-20 Rule

Most amateur golfers tend to have their weight too equally distributed between both legs at setup when they chip, which causes them to hit too far behind the ball. The 80-20 rule, where golfers stack 80 percent of their weight on their lead leg, prevents chunks by promoting a more descending blow onto the golf ball.

6. The 1/3rd Tee Rule

Yes, the way you tee up the ball matters. Need more distance? Tee the ball up so the bottom 1/3rd of the golf ball is under the top of the driver. It'll launch the ball a little higher, help it spin less, and make it go farther.

Need more accuracy? Tee the ball up so only the top 1/3rd of the golf ball is above the top of the driver. It'll launch the ball a little higher, and spin more, to help it stay in play.

7. 5 Second Rule

A little basic, but a good reminder for two of the most important parts of the game. With the driver in your hands, you should be balanced enough to hold your follow through position for five full seconds (Unless you're Scottie Scheffler, and you can hit the ball as well as him).

With the putter in your hands, you should keep your head down for a full five seconds from the time you start your stroke. As Butch Harmon says, it'll teach you to putt with your left ear.

8. 2 Knuckle Rule

No two golf grips are the same—and that's ok! Golfers can and should tweak their grip to suit how their body moves, but to do that, you need to understand the basics.

When you look down at your grip, if you see two knuckles on your lead hand, that's considered neutral. If you see fewer than two knuckles, your grip is "weaker" and you're more likely to miss to the right. If you see more than two knuckles, your grip is "stronger," and you'll be more likely to miss to the left.

9. The 6-inch Rule

Sway gap is an important, new age measurement which you can learn more about right here. It measures the difference in the location of your lower body, and the location of your upper body, at impact.

As a general rule of thumb, your lower body should be about six inches ahead of your upper body at impact. That will help make better contact with both your irons and your driver.

10. The Overread Rule

Ideally, you read the putt in front of you exactly perfectly every time. And maybe you'll see a pig flying past when you do.

Putts are confusing, and you won't get all of them right. But it's important to remember that missing putts low—under-reading putts—will hurt you more than over-reading putts will. That's because when you under-read a putt, gravity is working against you, and pulling the ball further away from the hole. When you play too much break, gravity is at least moving the ball closer to the hole right up to the point it stops rolling.

So remember: When in doubt, go high and soft.

UPCOMING EVENTS

ASGA DC Members,

We are kicking off the 2025 Weekend golf outings at Algonkian Golf Course on Saturday, April 5th. I have 20 tee times beginning at 12:20 pm. The cost is $71 riding or $48.50 walking. This includes green fees, taxes, CTP and yearly raffle entry. A small bucket of range balls is included.

Algonkian no longer allows weekend group outings, however, they made an exception since a couple of ASGA DC members are volunteers at the course. Unfortunately they did not provide a discount on the green fees.

After our round, we will be meeting at Miller Ale House in Sterling beginning about 5 pm (at your own expense). Please join us for a social event if you do not golf.

*Deadline is Friday, March 28*. Please email me and let me know your intentions of riding or walking, and dinner. Send $$ preferably by Zelle to sepatton629@gmail.com or 7032017521. Contact me if you need another option to submit payment.

Please contact me with any questions...

Rules of Golf Review: I love my lie, but I have to stand in ground under repair to hit the shot. Is that allowed?

By Ron Kaspriske, GolfDigest.com

You've probably seen golf tournaments on TV where a player opts to hit a shot off a paved cart path or has to stand on the cement because the lie is better than if the golfer took relief from the immovable obstruction. Play it as it lies is a fundamental aspect of the game.

Just last year, Mackenzie Hughes took his shoes off—seriously—believing he would have a better chance of gripping the hard surface of a cart path with his feet than in his spiked golf shoes. That's how motivated he was to play from a drain grate instead of taking relief. To be clear, as long as a ball is on the course and not in an area marked for mandatory relief like a no-play zone (think environmentally sensitive areas), you're entitled to play it. Sometimes taking free relief puts the ball in a better lie. Sometimes it doesn't.

You might wonder if you're allowed to do the same if your ball is in ground under repair or if your ball is outside the GUR area but your stance leaves your feet inside it. Maybe you like the lie, but there's the overall concern about doing further damage to an area that needs some TLC.

The answer: When it comes to ground under repair, it's your choice. Take relief or play your ball from that sweet lie (Rule 16.1a). You might make the damage worse to the GUR, but the superintendent is the only one who will probably take issue.

Incidentally, the outside edge of the stakes or paint lines that mark the area are also considered ground under repair. If your ball, stance or area of intended swing is interfered with by this abnormal course condition and you decide to take relief, you must find the nearest point of complete relief from the ground under repair and drop your original ball or another ball clear from it and within one clublength of that point, not nearer the hole. There is no penalty.

Getting back to areas on the course marked as no-play zones, this is the one instance where you must take relief even if your ball is not in the zone but your area of intended stance or intended swing would be interfered with by the NPZ. If you're wondering how no-play zones are typically marked, the Rules of Golf doesn't designate a specific color of stakes or lines, but the following is recommended: Penalty area no-play zones should have red or yellow stakes with green tops. Abnormal course condition no-play zones should have white or blue stakes with green tops.

It must be completed only the by the member currently joining and completing the application.
- 5) New members can join over the phone, at our website (SinglesGolf.com/join), fax, etc., however, they MUST use your member number or name at the time of joining as the person who referred the new member. Again, no exceptions to this policy.
- 6) ASGA National will keep track of how many new members you get credit for and will automatically add 12-months to your membership. Please, no slanting of these rules

IN ADDITION, WE CAN SEND YOU FREE BUSINESS CARDS!

As you have seen from the previous two (2) pages of this newsletter, ASGA National is committed to seeing your chapter grow. We believe by asking each individual member for help, your chapter will grow its membership.

Besides using just the yellow signs to gain more members in your local chapter, upon request we will also provide you with ASGA business cards as shown below. More can be sent to you if needed, but we'll start out by sending you 25 business cards that you can give to anyone you believe might be a potential member. Are you out and about and see someone wearing a golf shirt or hat? Start a conversation: tell them you're a part of a local club for singles who play golf and simply ask "are you single?" Even if they aren't, chances are they know a golfer who is. Give them a card that's pre-filled with you name (or member #) and contact info.

Remember, you get free dues for referring 3 new folks who join!

Below shows how your business card appears. They don't come to you automatically, you'll have to order them. E-mail Irene@SinglesGolf or call 980-833-6450 (9am—1:30pm, Mon-Fri, Eastern) for your free 25 cards.
