Famous for its red-hued medieval castle, perched on a hilltop overlooking the old Moorish quarter, Silves was once one of the most important Islamic strongholds in the Algarve. After the Christian reconquest in 1249, it became a key Christian centre. Today, it is also known for producing some of the finest cork in the world.

We then continue to Lagos, and you will have lunch in Lagos (meal not included).

Lagos, is the former capital of the Algarve and a city deeply connected to the Age of the Portuguese Discoveries in the 15th century. Lagos is believed to have been the site of Prince Henry the Navigator’s nautical school.
